The California Department of Insurance (CDI) was charged with creating new programs and expanding existing operations to meet the mandates of Proposition 103. Methodology for Calculating Proposition 103 Costs

CDI's time and activity reporting systems require employees to maintain monthly timesheets on work activities and tasks. Timesheet information is interfaced to the Financial Information System for California (FI$Cal). FI$Cal is the state's accounting system that was developed, pursuant to Government Code section 13300, to account for and monitor revenues, expenditures, receipts, disbursements, and resources.

The annual Proposition 103 Recoupment Fee Assessment calculation is based on actual cost information from FI$Cal, which reports costs by CDI's organization and program structure. Organization costs are reported by each Branch/Division/Bureau/Unit within CDI.

Program costs categories are designated by the Department to provide costs of CDI activities such as Proposition 103, examinations, fraud, and other regulatory functions.

To project the current year Proposition 103 Recoupment Fee Assessment costs, CDI analyzes the actual prior year expenditures and makes any adjustments for known workload and appropriation changes for the current year. This process also rolls forward adjustments of any prior year under/over collection of assessments to determine the current year costs and ensure cost recovery.

Fee Assessment Determination

Pursuant to the California Code of Regulations, Title 10, Chapter 5, Subchapter 4.8, Article 7, section 2647.1, the recoupment fee assessment process ensures that each insurer pays a fair share of CDI's actual cost of administering Proposition 103 Recoupment Fee Assessment based on the insurer's regulatory burden. The sum of all insurers' annual fee assessments is equal to CDI's expected Proposition 103 Recoupment Fee Assessment costs for the current year and adjustments from the prior year. It also includes a contingency reserve to meet unanticipated fluctuations in expenditures and revenues. In FY 2021-22 the assessment includes increased costs as a result of the elimination of the Personal Leave Program-2020, which reduced salaries 9.23 percent in FY 2020-21, and General Salary Increases approved effective July 1, 2021, as approved by the Administration and Legislature.

Each insurer's annual Proposition 103 Recoupment Fee Assessment is based on the assessment factor correlating to the written premiums for each direct line of business subject to Proposition 103 (from Exhibit C) multiplied by the base rate.

The base rate for FY 2021-22 is $322.

Billings

CDI will bill each insurer quarterly during FY 2021-22 (July 1, 2021 - June 30, 2022).
