Insurance Diversity Initiative – Our Story

The Insurance Diversity Initiative (IDI) was established in 2011 by California Insurance Commissioner Dave Jones to increase procurement from diverse suppliers, and increase diversity amongst insurer governing boards within California's $310 billion insurance industry.

To accomplish these goals, the Insurance Diversity Initiative leads numerous integral components, such as the Annual Insurance Diversity Summit, the Insurance Diversity Task Force, mission-critical projects, and, the Insurance Diversity Surveys. When Commissioner Jones first entered office in 2011, he found there was little or no data available on supplier diversity and corporate board diversity in the insurance industry. He launched the IDI that year to address this lack of information and it has continued to expand and make great strides.

The Insurance Diversity Surveys collect and publicly disseminate critical information about the state of diversity in the insurance industry, particularly supplier diversity and corporate board diversity. Through the transparency of companies' disclosures in these areas, "what gets measured gets done." The mere act of asking insurance companies about their diversity efforts plants board diversity in the minds of decision-makers if they have not already considered this vital aspect of their businesses.

The data reveals how many procurement dollars insurance companies spend on goods and services provided by diverse businesses. For the first time ever, information from insurance companies about their diversity efforts is being collected and made public.

“ The California Insurance Diversity Initiative started a conversation among insurers, suppliers, governing board members, advocates, and stakeholders that has translated into action. ”

Each year, the Diversity Summit provides a unique opportunity for hundreds of diverse suppliers, insurance industry leaders, stakeholders, and subject-matter experts to share best practices in supplier diversity procurement programs and governing board diversity.
