

Diana Domenech

Senior Director
Supplier Diversity, Sustainability, & Strategy
Global Sourcing and Procurement Services
American International Group, Inc.

Diana Domenech, joined AIG July 2013 as Senior Director of Supplier Diversity, Sustainability, & Strategy. She is responsible for driving the growth and expansion of the company Supplier Diversity efforts into the businesses and around the globe and developing Sustainability practices within the Global Sourcing & Procurement Services function.

Prior to joining AIG, Diana spent 14 years at JPMorgan Chase. Most recently, Diana was Vice President of the Corporate Supplier Diversity Program where she was responsible for leading the firm wide supplier diversity initiative. Under her leadership, the Supplier Diversity Program grew spend with Tier 1 and Tier 2 diverse business to over $1.3 billion annually. Diana had also worked as a Project Manager and MIS Analyst in the operations areas of the bank. She started her career at JPMorgan Chase as an Associate in Technology and Operations management development program.

Diana has a certificate from the University of Granada, Spain; a BS from Cornell University, College of Human Ecology; and an MBA from New York University, Stern School of Business. She currently serves as chair of the Financial Services Roundtable for Supplier Diversity, on the board of the Women Presidents Educational Organization, and is an active member of the AIG CAO Diversity & Inclusion Council, the National Minority Supplier Development Council, the Women Business Enterprise National Council, the United States Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, the National Gay and Lesbian Chamber of Commerce, the United States Business Leadership Network, WEConnect International, and the Minority Supplier Development Council of the United Kingdom.