greater economic opportunities for diverse suppliers and to also see this level of diversity reflected on insurer governing boards. WHAT'S NEW?

Support Insurance Diversity with SB 534: Send in your Letters of Support now

Insurance Commissioner Ricardo Lara is sponsoring a critical diversity bill introduced by Senator Steven Bradford: Senate Bill (SB) 534.

As an extension of the original insurance supplier diversity bill AB 53, SB 534 focuses on supplier and governing board diversity and seeks to:

- Require insurance companies to report on their supplier diversity and governing board diversity efforts
- Expand the diverse supplier categories to include LGBT and veteran-owned businesses
- Codify the Insurance Diversity Task Force, an advisory board for the Commissioner and Department

With laws requiring Californians to purchase many types of insurance, such as automobile and health insurance, insurers collect $310 billion a year in premiums in California - yet have only scratched the surface when it comes to procuring goods and services from diverse businesses, or having governing boards that mirror the diversity of California. SB 534 will assess insurer progress and support the Insurance Diversity Initiative’s mission to increase supplier and board diversity.

Please show your support for SB 534 by sending your letters of support!

How the Rise of Insurtech is Impacting the Insurance Industry in an Unexpected Way

By: Alicja Grzadkowska

(Originally Published in Insurance Business America)

The insurtech movement isn’t just infusing the insurance supply chain with new solutions – it’s also bringing more diversity into the industry, according to one expert.

“We’ve seen a lot more women coming into the field than we did before, especially on the technology side,” said Becky Schroeder (pictured), senior vice president of sales and marketing at Insurance Technologies Corporation (ITC) [sic]. “You have a lot more women in the technology industry in general than you do in the incumbent insurance companies. That, I think, is where we’ve seen a lot of diversity happen, though there’s been a lot of women that have been growing into leadership positions within those incumbents, too.”

While there continues to be challenges in the advancement of diverse leaders, women are now in a position where they can rise up and face hurdles head on, added Schroeder, in part because of the ongoing conversations happening today about the promotion of women into leadership roles.

Insurance professionals can, meanwhile, change their companies from the inside out to help turn that conversation into action.

“When you’re looking around your company, what is the succession plan of this company and who is the future leadership? Bring women into that conversation, and get their perspective and insight into it,” said Schroeder, adding that women have a lot to add to the dialogue, so it’s important to make sure they have a chance to speak up, while giving them the platform to do so.

For their part, women in the insurance workforce can build a network of people who can advocate for them. Schroeder has seen the benefits of mentorship in her own career trajectory....

Since 2004, the Alliance for Board Diversity (ABD) has been striving to increase the representation of women and minorities on corporate boards. Over the past 14 years, ABD has celebrated the movement forward on diverse board representation, but the fact remains that progress has been painfully slow. The 2018 Missing Pieces Report is the culmination of a multiyear effort organized by the Alliance for Board Diversity, collaborating with Deloitte for the 2016 and 2018 censuses, which has examined and chronicled the representation of women and minorities on public company boards of directors across America’s largest companies.

This study highlights the progress to date that has been made (or not) for women and minorities on corporate boards. While there have been a few gains for some demographic groups, advancement is still slow. This movement is also not representative of the broad demographic transformations that have been seen in the United States over the same period of time.

The Insurance Diversity Initiative was established in 2011 to address diversity issues within California’s $310 billion insurance industry. Specifically, these efforts are meant to increase procurement from California’s diverse suppliers, as well as to increase diversity amongst insurer governing boards. To accomplish these goals, the Department conducts outreach, creates partnerships, hosts events, and most importantly, administers surveys to collect and publicly disseminate information about the state of diversity in the insurance industry.
